

Dr. Clyde Lanford (Lanny) Smith is a writer and a physician trained in Primary Care Internal Medicine (Boston City Hospital) and Preventive Medicine with a Masters in Public Health from Harvard School of Public Health and a Diploma in Tropical Medicine & Hygiene from the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine. From 1992-98 he lived in El Salvador as Country Director of Médecins du Monde (Physicians of the World) France. From 2004-2012 he served on the global Steering Committee of the People's Health Movement (PHM), and continues as an advisor and faculty of the International People's Health University \(IPHU\). Founder of Doctors for Global Health \(DGH\), he serves on its board as Liberation Medicine Counsel. He is Co-Founder of the journal Social Medicine and serves on its editorial board. He is co-editor of the book Women's Global Health and Human Rights. He is "Global Community Health Advisor" in the Division of General Medicine and Primary Care, Department of Medicine at Beth Israel Deaconess Medical Center, Assistant Professor of Medicine at Harvard Medical School and Adjunct-Associate Professor of Clinical Medicine and Clinical Family & Social Medicine at Montefiore Medical Center, Albert Einstein College of Medicine. He is the recipient of the Harvard Medical School 2014 Dean's Community Service Lifetime Achievement Award in recognition for his work with Doctors for Global Health. His research interests include social medicine, community oriented primary care, art and health, tropical medicine, chronic disease including diabetes and endemic goiter, and health education. Smith lived in the Bronx, NY, from 2000-2012, now in Boston, where he works locally and globally through Liberation Medicine, "the conscious, conscientious use of health to promote social justice and human dignity."